

Community is a Verb

Nedra Deadwyler

Who are you?

What are you local to?
What are your restrictions?
What are your rituals?

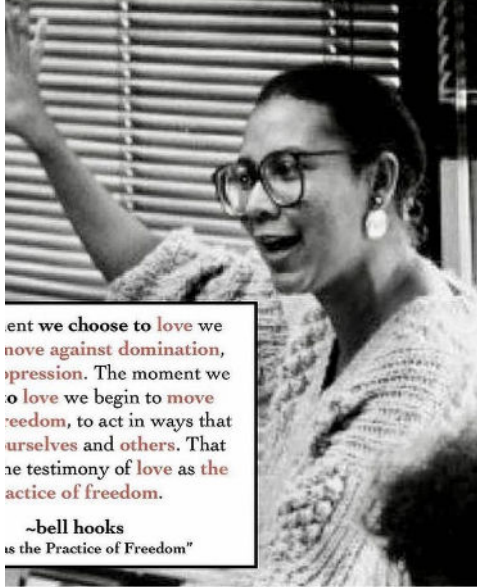

BELONGINGNESS

Sawubona, “I see you. Zulu language.

This is profoundly troubling, “because it leaves Americans I’ll-equipped to understand racial inequality today, and that in turn, leads to intolerance, opposition to efforts to address racial injustice, and the enacting of laws and policies detrimental to Black communities and America writ large.” ... Historian Hasan Keane Jefferies, The 1619 Project: A New Origin Story

ent we choose to love we move against domination, oppression. The moment we love we begin to move
freedom, to act in ways that ourselves and others. That is the testimony of love as the act of freedom.

~bell hooks
in "The Practice of Freedom"

What do we want?

Nedra Deadwyler's
Nedradeadwylerconsulting@gmail.com